GUIDING YOUR CHILD
WEEK-ENDS
By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

We adults think of week-ends as a time of relaxation and pleasure. We go visiting, invite dinner guests, go automobile riding and attend shows.

To the young child, however, the unusual happenings at home over Saturday and Sunday are likely to be a nervous strain.

The older children are home from school and fill the house with their friends with their own comings and goings, their needs and demands.

It is well to make provision so that the small child's routine will not be interfered with over the week end.

He should be permitted to sleep late on Monday morning and to have an especially quiet day.
